Will Vie for SeatsREF : A. Taipei A-202 (NOTAL)

CINCPAC FOR POLAD

On November 28 the General Election Office completed its review of the 83 candidates who registered to compete for the 37 Legislative Yuan seats which are up for election on December 20.* The roster of candidates will be formally announced by the General Election Office on December 5, and campaigning will officially begin the same day.

On the basis of its review, the General Election Office disqualified seven contestants. Of these, six were independents and one Democratic Socialist Party. None of those disqualified was an incumbent. It is therefore not surprising that none of the thirty KMT candidates, 29 of whom are incumbents, was disqualified.

Of those who were found ineligible, three were disqualified for failure to meet the minimum education requirement of documented graduation from senior middle school or senior vocational school. Another two were disqualified on criminal grounds -- one had previously violated the Anti-Corruption Law, the other had committed a crime and is presently out on bail. The other two were disqualified for failing to

* At approximately the same time, 15 legislators representing overseas Chinese communities will be selected by the President on the basis of a roster of nominees compiled by a selection committee appointed by the President.

file correctly: one failed to inform his occupational group of his intention to compete in a regional election, and the other filed for competition in an occupational group after informing that group of his intention to compete in a regional election.*

By the November 29 deadline for withdrawal from the campaign, 15 candidates had withdrawn their registration. All were independents. Thus, the total number of candidates who will vie for the 37 seats is 61, of which four are women. Thirty of the candidates belong to the KMT, four to the Young China Party (YCP), and 27 are independents. Forty-eight list their native place as Taiwan Province, and three as Taipei Municipality; the others are from various provinces on China mainland. The age range of the candidates is wide: the youngest is 32 and the oldest 71. But the bulk are in their forties.

So far the elections have failed to stimulate widespread interest locally; and as reported in earlier Embassy messages, no major upsets are predicted by local political observers. Nine seats are uncontested - those for the Second District, Fukien Province, Farmers' Associations, Fishermen's Associations, Industrial Associations, and Aborigines.

Attached is a list of the candidates in the order** in which they will appear on the ballots. Brief biographies are included.
